

Swahili flashcards — please check

Asante sana for reading through this.

These cards teach Swahili to a German speaker. The Swahili sentences, the morpheme analysis and the noun-class entries were all produced by a machine and have never been checked by anyone who speaks the language. That is what this sheet is for.

What to look at, in order of importance:

1. The noun classes (Part A). Is the Swahili word right for the English meaning? Is the plural right? Is the class pair right? This matters most: every card in the whole set is built from these entries, so one correction here fixes many cards at once.

2. The contrast pairs (Part B). Each pair should differ in exactly one thing. Does the Swahili show that difference correctly?

3. The sentences (Part C). Is the Swahili correct and natural? Does it mean what the English says? Standard Swahili, Tanzanian usage — not Sheng.

Everything here is for private language learning. Nothing is sold.

How to mark it

If a line is correct, leave it alone — no tick needed.

If it is wrong, cross it out and write the correction in the empty column on the right.

If you are unsure, put a question mark. That is useful too.

If a sentence is grammatically possible but nobody would say it that way, please say so — that is exactly the kind of mistake a machine makes.
